It's very seldom a mountie has to use the "billy" to get his man.

Evidently falling out of a parked car on main street, a pair of glasses in open-end leather case may be recovered on applying to The Enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. "Sonny" Richards, of the Grand Union Hotel, Coleman, took in the opening day of the Calgary Stampede. Bill Duncan was also there, trying to keep Grit quiet.

Invalid tots at the Red Cross Crippled Children's Hospital in Calgary could not go to the Stampede, so members of "Puddy" Conklin's Frolicland went out to visit them. During the same afternoon children from Wood's Christian Home were guests of Mr. Conklin on the midway.

Death claimed an old timer from Coleman on July 2nd in the person of Ernest Beart, aged 62. Deceased had been paraded marshal the day previous, and upon arrival at the sports ground he collapsed. He was rushed to the hospital, where he expired the next afternoon. Born in Suffolk, England, he came to Canada when quite young, settling at Montreal. He was married in 1909 and came to Coleman in 1914. In 1916 he enlisted in the 192nd Battalion and returned to Coleman after the armistice. In 1923 he left with his family for Eastern Canada, and worked in Toronto and Niagara Falls for a year and a half before returning west. He is survived by his widow, a married daughter (Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Calgary), two grandchildren and three sisters, the latter residing in England. The remains were laid to rest in the Coleman cemetery on Sunday.

A Menominee who fled from a train carrying conscientious objectors from Prince Albert National Park to fire-fighting work at New Westminster, B.C., was fined $50 and 90 cents, with option of two months in Prince Albert penitentiary.

A carload of scrap metal and two tons of rubber were sold last week in Lundbreck to the Machine Depot Limited, Calgary, netting to the Lundbreck branch of the Red Cross $166.55, and to the Maycroft branch $64.70. Those of the district who gave their scrap and rubber, and those who collected it and found a market for it, should be well pleased with the results of their efforts.

LET THE TOWN DOWN

Old timers would turn over in their graves if they knew the rising generation in this town and district had failed to put over a celebration on Dominion Day. The men who think they are young at 40 or 50 years of age are letting the town down. You hardly ever see one at a Board of Trade meeting, or anything to promote the best interests of the town. They seem to be quite satisfied to celebrate in some other place, or leave home affairs for "George to do."

Presented to the R.C.A.F. by policemen of Canada, this new Spitfire is being piloted by Pilot Officer Gordon Hoben, former Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, shown in the cockpit. PO Hoben had been a bomber pilot, but at the request of the officers who raised the Spitfire fund he was sent to an Operational Training Unit for a special course as a fighter pilot. PO Hoben served with the R.C.M.P. in Toronto, Saskatoon, Regina and Windsor. Presentation was made by Sir Philip Game, commissioner of the Metropolitan Police of London, standing nearest the cockpit. DISCUSS DECREASE DRIVERS' LICENSES

Alberta's drop of approximately 26,000 in number of licensed car drivers, compared with a year ago, has caused some speculation as to the factors responsible, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

While it is realized that there is a drop of 8,000 car registrations as against a year ago, the sharp decrease in licenses does not appear to be in line.

Government officials claim, in explaining the falling off in drivers' licenses, that it is due to a combination of circumstances. The main one, it is claimed, is that numerous enlistments of young men in the armed forces have been responsible.

Still another factor is that as "dead" owns the car in many cases, and operates it according to his gasoline ration coupons, the younger members of the family do not take out licenses because there is not the same free use of the car as in pre-war days. Many men just use their cars for a short drive each day and it is not available for pleasure driving to any great extent.

Doubtless many of the drivers' licenses also have been dropped because of cars being laid up on account of gasoline and tire restrictions.

The general situation, however, is being watched by the A.M.A.

The road between Beaver Mines and Burnis should be given some attention and somewhat graded if a crowd is looked for at the Castle River Stampede. Attention should be drawn to the necessity of diverting a small trickle of water which is winding its way down the hill from the Stevens' place. Two minutes' work would divert that water across the road. The same applies to the little stream allowed to follow the road down towards the stampede grounds from the south. Surely someone in the district has time to attend to that. About the best invitation to a stampede is a well-graded road.

WILSON—MACDONALD

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday morning, July 3rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Angus MacDonald, when their youngest daughter, Marion, became the bride of Constable John L. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, of Rapid City, Manitoba. Rev. E. B. Arrol officiated.

The bride was attired in an afternoon frock of coral pink crepe with fitted embroidered jacket, and wore a corsage of yellow tallman rosebuds and valley lilies. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Peter Wasnock, dressed in aqua blue crepe and corsage of red rosebuds. The groom was supported by Constable G. R. Stewart, a member of the local R.C.M.P. detachment. Mrs. R. R. Large, of Fernie, B.C., played the wedding music.

Following the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served, after which many friends of the young couple called to extend their good wishes and congratulations. Later the bride and groom left by motor for Nelson, B.C., where they will spend their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a navy pin-stripe suit with beige accessories. On their return they will take up residence at Manyberries, Alberta, to which point the groom has just been transferred in charge of R. C. M. P. service.

Sugar rationing need not discourage berry-picking excursions this summer. If you tell your grocer the weight of fruit you have picked, he will sell you the required amount of sugar, one half pound per pound weight of fruit for preserving, and three-quarters of a pound per pound weight of fruit for jam making.

An R. A. F. plane from Pearce crashed on Table Butte in the Porcupine Hills on Monday of last week. The two occupants made their way down to the Jack Douglas place, where they phoned the airport and James Lowe, of Cowley, went out from Cowley and brought them to town. One of the boys sustained minor injuries to his face the other escaping unharmed. Owing to the rough country in that neighborhood, it is thought that salvaging the plane would be a difficult job.

Importance Of The Farm

AS WE LOOK FORWARD to another harvest season, when the crops from Canada's farms and gardens are ready to be garnered, we may feel that here is an assurance of plenty of many vital food stuffs for ourselves and others of the United Nations. Canada's contributions from her dairies, farms and orchards are playing a great part in keeping the people of England supplied with food and other food products are being sent elsewhere to our Allies as they are needed and as there are facilities for transporting them. Our soldiers, sailors and airmen are known to us by their uniforms, and their deeds of gallantry are recorded in the press. This is as it should be, but perhaps too few people give due recognition to the farmer, who also plays an important role in the conflict. For the men in the services, the workers on home front, and the civilian population, the supply of food is essential, both here and in Britain.

Shortage Of Farm Labor

Young men from Canadian farms have gone in large numbers to the armed services, and to munition factories, with a resulting shortage of farm labor, which leaves many farmers to carry on, attempting to keep up production with real difficulty. Recent figures have shown that the average age of the Canadian farmer is past middle life, yet he is now often obliged to work unduly long hours, and to do the work ordinarily done by several men, due to the shortage of help. In some cases this has led to a farmer feeling forced to curtail production, and dispose of livestock. When we reach the harvest season, this condition may be acute in some parts of the country, but it is to be hoped that sufficient labor will be made available and that in no parts of the country will there be a reduction in the production of vital food stuffs because of lack of workers.

Depending On Canada

In some sections school boys and men from nearby towns have offered to assist with the harvest, and recent government regulations have been aimed at restricting the movement of farm workers to other industries. Canada is one of the few countries left where extensive production of food is possible, and nothing should be allowed to slow down this part of our war effort. In his recent budget speech Finance Minister Halsey said: "Excluding wheat which has been in surplus supply since the beginning of the war and has required special measures, the prices of farm products on the average are now about two per cent. above the level of 1926 and prices of animal products are relatively still higher. Farmers are assured of these prices on a wide range of this season's crops and will receive, by government action, higher prices, than those now ruling for wheat, flax, soy beans, sugar beets and apples." The problems of the farmer today, as always, are many, and all possible support should be given him to keep his production at a high level in these critical times.

NONE FOR PETS

Pets, whether kittens or horses, cannot have sugar ration cards, war-time prices and trade board officials said. These officials told pet owners if they wanted to continue feeding their animals sugar it must come from their own allowance.

TAKING PRECAUTIONS

Just in case London should suffer heavy bombings again, many churches in the city have removed their treasures to places of safekeeping in the country, including pulpits, screens, fonts, altar tables and even organs.

IS STILL USEFUL

An old steam fire engine may help the Liverpool Fire Department beat gasoline rationing. The 50-year-old veteran has been overhauled and is ready for service. In a demonstration, the engine threw four powerful streams of water nine minutes after a fire was started under the boilers.

Lightning flashes over the earth continuously, striking on the average of 50 times a second, or 2,000,000,000 times a year.

Scientists believe that birds are an offshoot of active reptiles.

ANOTHER FOR YOUR HEALTH BOOK

"We fish don't swim in the ocean only to be eaten on Friday and what with submarine warfare it is increasingly difficult to stay out of trouble all week," the chairman of a codfish colony said in an underwater interview last week, explaining that numbers of his colleagues were not only willing but eager to win dietary recognition on another day besides Friday.

"Tuesday, for instance," the elderly doyen of the codfish colony said. "Comparing the value of fish with other foods, the chairman quoted the late Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, famed medical missionary, whose autobiography points out that whilst live on seafood and attain flamboyant proportions and unprecedented vitality."

Besides fresh filets of cod, fish markets now have an extensive variety of other filets and smoked fish of many kinds; the season for fresh haddock and salmon is in full swing—though there are equally nourishing cheaper kinds of salmon, and fresh frozen filets that taste just as good as though caught just a few minutes before being introduced to the pan.

HOW TO BUY FISH

Demand absolute freshness—shown by firm flesh which springs back when you touch it. Eyes should be bright. Gills should be fresh in color.

HOW TO KEEP FISH FRESH. FISH SHOULD BE KEPT IN A REFRIGERATOR.

Wrap fresh fish in waxed paper and place in the refrigerator.

Keep packaged frozen fish frozen until ready to cook and allow a little more time for cooking.

FISH NEEDS CAREFUL COOKING TO BE GOOD EATING.

Fish is always tender. Cook it evenly at low to moderate temperature so it will not dry out and get tough.

Ask your fishman—he knows the best way to cook different kinds of fish—whether to broil, bake, fry or boil them.

DID YOU EVER TRY?

Flicking the liver over fish to mix with mashed potato for fish cakes next day?

Cream sauce to serve on toast?

Making a salmon loaf from canned pink salmon which is inexpensive?

Dressing up the fish by pouring over it a little melted butter flavored with lemon or Worcestershire sauce?

WHAT DO YOU SERVE WITH FISH?

For the main plate:—Fish, mashed potato and another cooked vegetable. For a crisp lift to the appetite:—Coleslaw; a green salad, raw carrot sticks.

To fill the gaps:—Bread and butter.

To end with that satisfied feeling:—Something light and sweet, or cheese and crackers.

Have you received your referential vitamin chart? Write for it to Dept. W.N.U., Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto. Ask also for a fish recipe booklet giving 100 recipes for fish cookery.

Frequently Die Natural

Those Often Taking Stupendous Hazards And Living Dangerously

Generals are customarily reputed to die in bed, but that has been less true in this war than in any other for a long time, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. Nevertheless, it is true that most men who live adventurous lives, which usually means living dangerously, do not die while carrying out some risky adventure. William Hill, who died at Niagara Falls recently, died from natural cause, yet he had carried out exploits in the Niagara River and the Niagara Rapids, which made his name known far and wide. By the law of averages he ought to have lost his life by drowning long ago. In addition to that he went through the First World War and was wounded at Vimy Ridge.

Bobby Leach, the first man to go over the Falls in a barrel, was killed as the result of slipping on a banana skin on the sidewalk. Blondin, the tight-rope walker, crossed the Falls from shore to shore several times, performing stunts on the way, and died in bed forty years later. We believe, too, that there is an Ontario man still alive who performed the same breath-taking balancing feat.

Considering the number of wild animal acts, very few "lion tamers" are killed in the cages, although almost all are scratched or mauled from time to time. This is the more remarkable because the "tamers" go through their performances at least twice a day, sometimes oftener, for about eight months of the year. Clyde Beatty, who mixes forty lions and tigers together, says the secret of his immunity is that although he thinks it is possible he may be killed one day, he never enters the cage without saying to himself: "It's not going to be today."

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irwin

An ingenious reporter made a tour of gasoline stations a few weeks ago and demonstrated how to buy gasoline without giving up coupons.

He wrote an article that was featured heavily in his paper and a number of readers spoke of it as a fine public service.

To the Enforcement Council of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board the article looked a little different.

They said: "It would seem a fine public service if the bright young man had brought the information to us so we could act on it instead of telling 200,000 readers how to do it!"

A narrow view? I don't think so. It meant that the lawyer feared 200,000 people would break the law. But he did know from ad experience that a percentage would.

It's something like those "Crime Does Not Pay" movies. You show potential gangsters and racketeers how to do something they hadn't thought of and then point a moral.

Nine times out of ten the person at whom the moral is pointed pays no heed to it. And those who do heed it don't need it.

A somewhat similar situation arose a few months ago when a racket was uncovered in one Canadian city. This one was operated by a man who took fearful chances with a drug which he administered to young men who did not want to serve in the army.

Reporters who got hold of the story, admirably, from a newspaperman's point of view, wanted to get their teeth into the story and uncover all the details.

However, it was explained to them that publication of these details not only might encourage other malefactors to start similar rackets but might also result in deaths from ignorant toying with dangerous drugs.

This parallel between what the army civilians do, and what happens in the Army gets very strong at times, doesn't it?

Yes, I mean just that. The dealer in gasoline who aids a motorist to evade the gasoline regulations to every bit as dangerous to the war effort as the low character who aids draft violators to escape their duty.

A number of people with whom I have been talking recently have posed an interesting question. It is "What is the Reserve Army going to do about men in rural districts and smaller centres who want to join but have no Reserve Army unit near them?"

A few days ago I travelled for sometime on the same train as "Sam" Browne, Director-General of the Reserve Army, and that was one of the questions we discussed.

At the moment the Reserve Army is so far below strength in the centres in which units are established that the first job to be done is its recruitment up to strength and the training of men who are handy to the Armouries. Except in towns where there are Armouries it is hard to find suitable headquarters. Eventually, however, plans will be considered to make reserve training available to as many who are not eligible for active service as possible.

Major-General Brown was on his way to Montreal to address a meeting of the Recruiting Committee that has set itself the task of raising 100,000 men for the Reserve Army in that city.

He said that similar campaigns in Toronto and the West had been very successful and that they had reached their quotas in a very short time.

A funny thing got into the papers a few days ago. It was a story from Ottawa saying that the Army would follow the lead of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by prohibiting uniform trousers with cuffs and pleats.

What's funny about that? Just this, that it has been in the dress regulations for a long time that officers' slacks must not have cuffs. They never have had pleats.

So, as a matter of fact, the Individual Citizen's Army, in doing without cuffs and pleats on its trousers is following the Army's lead, not the other way round.

Here's a place of Citizen's Army along for a change. This is to be found on invitations. It is "E.Y.O.P." or "E.Y.O.P." or "E.Y.O.P." The meaning? Simple! Bring your own tea, or Bring your own coffee, or Bring your own sugar.

And why not? There's a war on! Best of all would be "Come on your own feet," there's plenty of use for gasoline in the Tank Corps.

The explosive pressure in a modern rifle is more than 19 tons per square inch.

Hotel In Boston Gets Permit To Erect Hitching Post

Boston granted its first hitching post permit in its 200-year history and simultaneously plans were made for horse troughs at centrally located gasoline stations.

The hitching post—no permit was required in the old days—went to Hotel Lennox. After once refusing the hotel, the board of street commissioners commented:

"Changing times, changing conditions, and the revival of hacks and carriages on Boston streets have now made the hotel's proposal feasible and acceptable."

The Toronto Telegram says: Ilya Ehrenburg, distinguished Russian journalist who has been writing magnificent stuff from the Russian battle fronts, has been awarded a Stalin Prize for Literature for 1942. Mr. Ehrenburg was in France during the tragic summer of 1940. He stayed on to watch the Germans march into Paris, and it is his book—"The Fall of France"—that gained for him one of the coveted Stalin prizes together with 100,000 rubles in cash. The Russian writer's book has not yet been translated into English.

Allied Seapower Fight To Smash Sub Offensive

Washington.—The United Nations high command has thrown the full force of available allied seapower into the fight to smash Hitler's U-boat offensive, the navy department disclosed with an announcement that Canadian and British warships are cruising side by side with United States vessels in the battle of the Atlantic.

Allied corvettes, destroyers and other "anti-submarine vessels" are at work both on the distant high seas and in the campaign against submarines operating along the United States eastern seaboard, the statement revealed.

This means that hundreds of battle-toughened veterans of two and a half years of U-boat warfare off Britain's shores now are helping the United States fight off Nazi raiders on this side of the Atlantic.

This and the presumably large number of additional vessels which now have been thrown into the anti-submarine campaign raised hopes of experts here that a material lessening in U-boat depredations off the North American coast would be achieved this summer.

Recent important developments in this campaign would seem to strengthen this attitude of cautious optimism, although they are based on the profit side of allied operations. These developments include:

1. The United States navy's announcement of June 22 that a convoy system had been instituted along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida. Authorities said convoys heavily protected by small warships offer the best possible protection to shipping.
2. The disclosure shortly thereafter that enemy subs are planting mines along the eastern United States coast and that a few sinkings from these mines had already occurred.
3. Announcement by the United States navy of merchant ships sinking at a rate of two to four a day even during the period in which convoys have been operating. Most of these losses have occurred, however, in the Caribbean or other southern waters where convoys are not yet known to be in operation.
4. Evidence of the increasing speed of American production of special anti-submarine boats and the use by the navy of small, private craft for both a limited anti-sub patrol and also to release large coast guard vessels now tied up on routine harbor protection duties.

EARNED AWARD

Saskatchewan Born Air Pilot Recommended By King George
Edmonton.—Captain Donald M. McVicar, 27, of Edmonton, pilot with the Royal Air Force ferry command, has received civil commendations from His Majesty the King for his part in a "hazardous survey of a certain route."

Former navigation pilot with Canadian Airways Training, Ltd., at No. 2 observer school, Capt. McVicar is the son of J. G. McVicar of Edmonton.

There was no explanation of the award in a news story released from Montreal over the weekend and the "certain route" was not otherwise identified.

The Edmonton pilot has been with the ferry command for the past six months, "wheeling" bombers across the Atlantic for use by the R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. in smashing raids on enemy positions.

Born in Oxbow, Sask., he came to Edmonton at an early age, receiving his early training here. He was also educated at St. John's college, Winnipeg, and the University of Alberta.

"French sea routes were used for secret concentration of German forces in North Africa which preceded Rommel's offensive."

MAXIMUM PRICES

Order Issued Governing Number Of Items Sold By Dealers
Ottawa.—Maximum prices at which dealers may sell a number of items of their 1944 pack are set in an order issued by the wartime price control board.

Affected are canned tomatoes and tomato juice, peas, corn, green and wax beans, peaches, pears, plums and apricots. Object of the order is to allow dealers to sell those products at a price which will permit wholesalers and retailers to keep under their price ceiling and thus prevent any rise in prices to the consumer.

In explaining the order, the board said retail prices for canned fruits and vegetables of the 1944 pack were based largely on cost of the 1940 pack. Wholesalers and retailers contracted to buy the 1944 goods before they were packed. Dealers found that their costs had gone up in 1944 before the ceiling was put into effect and as a result had to increase their prices later in the season just before the basic period. Wholesalers and retailers, however, sold canned goods during the basic period at prices reflecting the lower costs they obtained as a result of buying early in the season.

To enable wholesalers and retailers to continue selling canned goods at their ceiling prices, said the board, canned goods, wholesalers and retailers must absorb part of these increased costs. The board has decided to pay the dealer a subsidy to take care of the balance of these increases. Thus the consumer will still be able to buy the main items of canned fruits and vegetables at the same prices he paid during the basic period of Sept. 15-Oct. 11, 1941.

Tribunal To Deal With Farm Debt Problem

Saskatoon.—Creation of a tribunal or tribunals by "appropriate legislative authority" to deal with the farm debt problems of Western Canada will be sought by the governments of the prairie provinces and agrarian organizations.

Decision, to ask federal authority for the "necessary machinery" to make such a plan possible, was taken at the Prairie Farm Debt conference here.

Representatives of the governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will meet in Regina July 10-11 to prepare a submission of the proposal for Ottawa. Following the Regina meeting a delegation from the prairies will go to Ottawa.

A resolution, moved by Robert Gardiner, president of the United Farmers of Alberta, proposing the tribunal, received the unanimous support of the conference.

The plan calls for granting the tribunal or tribunals power to write down the principal of farm debts, to reduce interest rates and to stay proceedings arising on debts or securities after an adjudication has been made.

At the close of the two-day conference, Premier William Abernethy of Alberta said in an interview:

"I am confident the government at Ottawa will recognize the sincere desire of the West to clear away the barriers that have prevented the three prairie provinces from giving the very best in service to the nation."

He praised the co-operation shown by delegates at the conference, and said: "I am convinced that the problem in connection with farm debt has received a consideration and examination never before given."

The following are the basic principles of the tribunal plan under which a debt adjustment organization would be empowered to function:

1. To write down the principal of farm debts, secured and unsecured.
 2. To reduce the interest rate on farm debts, secured and unsecured.
 3. To alter the terms of payment of farm debts, secured and unsecured.
 4. To review and revise its own decisions in the light of events subsequent to the making of the decisions.
 5. To extend to individuals in any particular year of circumstances the protection of any of the provisions of legislation available to any debtor, whose affairs are being administered.
- Under the plan, debt adjustment would be made available to any farm debt regardless of the time at which it was incurred.
- The conference, which was under the chairmanship of Premier John Bracken, was attended by delegates from the provincial authorities after the return of the delegation from Ottawa.

Montreal.—Ninety per cent. of the company's air fleet is now flying men and materials connected with war projects, stated L. B. Urwin, president of Canadian Pacific Air Lines in Montreal. "At the present time operations of Canadian Pacific Air Lines in the Yukon and Northwest Territories regions are on a 24-hour basis and the company is freighting by air control parties and equipment connected with the Alaska highway as well as the plotting of the pipeline route from Fort Norman to Whitehorse carrying in the surveying parties to the proposed railway from Prince George northward to Alaska as well as providing essential northern mail and passenger services."

Russia Signs Pact With Britain
Retrospective To 1941
Moscow.—Great Britain and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement providing for financing of British military supplies sent to Russia, the Moscow radio announced. The agreement was signed June 27 in Moscow by British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr and A. I. Mikoyan, Soviet foreign trade commissar. Under the agreement British military supplies will be delivered to the Soviet Union on a lease-lend basis. The pact was made retroactive to June 22, 1941, the day the Germans invaded Russia.

OF LITTLE BENEFIT

Adding Thousands To Income Would Not Greatly Benefit Taxpayer
Ottawa.—Finance Minister Isley's budget of last week will have the effect of placing a ceiling on incomes almost as effective as the ceiling on prices, officials said after a review of the taxation proposals. Although the minister said he had studied and rejected the suggestion that a maximum level should be placed on the net income for any person, his proposed taxation will ride the rich with a tight rein. In the higher income brackets, the addition of some hundreds of thousands of dollars to annual income will benefit the taxpayer very little. Officials cited the case of the single man with an income of $50,000 annually. Under the proposed taxation he will have $14,297 left after he pays the Dominion levy. If he boosts his income to $100,000 annually, he will have for himself only $15,863 after he has paid his taxes. This means that while he has increased his income $50,000, his net benefit in "spending money" will be $4,566. To all intents and purposes, this $26,896 represents the ceiling on the single Canadian's income as those with incomes of more than $50,000 are about as rare as the dodo bird.

Post-War Wheat Exports To Be On Stabilized Price

Ottawa.—Trade Minister MacKinnon said the wheat agreement among Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina under which Canada is allotted 40 per cent. of total post-war wheat exports, provides facilities for the nation at the proper time to provide a measure of reasonable stability to wheat prices in the immediate post-war years. Completion of the agreement was announced in Washington. The United Kingdom, as a major importer of wheat, entered into the agreement insofar as prices are concerned. "It appeared impracticable, in view of possible changes in general price level and freight and exchange rates, to agree now on a range of prices to prevail after the war," Mr. MacKinnon said. "Instead, the United Kingdom agreed to negotiate with the four exporting countries within the first six months after the end of the hostilities a range of prices which will be mutually fair to the exporting and importing countries and which will bear a reasonable relationship to the general level of prices prevailing at that time."

The minister said that Canada's wheat production policies in 1941 and 1942 "have amply anticipated the wartime provision in the agreement that production should not exceed domestic and export requirements plus an adequate war reserve."

"Under the present arrangements, growers can be assured that they will not be confronted by falling export prices which might result from pressure of competitive offers shortly after the end of the war," said Mr. MacKinnon.

"The Canadian percentage of exports was in line with the Dominion's share of the export trade between the First Great War and the present war."

The sharing of available markets will not begin until the peace comes and presumably not until shipping is freely available.

POST-WAR PROBLEM

Creation Of Employment For Returned Soldiers And War Workers
Ottawa.—A motion urging that the House of Commons committee on reconstruction and re-establishment study means of bringing about realization of Canada's national resources to solve post-war reconstruction problems, was introduced before the committee by J. G. Turgeon (Lib., Carleton Place). "The most immediate reconstruction problem confronting Canada today is the creation of employment for, and the settlement of, returned soldiers and workers from war industry," the motion said.

MORE RATIONING

Ottawa, Ont.—Attorney-General Conant says that Canadians face rationing of essential foodstuffs within the next year or so. He believes such rationing probably will be on a basis similar to that in Britain now.

War Materials Are Continuing To Reach Russia

Moscow.—Merchant seamen man guns both at sea and in port to host off German fleets seeking to slash the supply line feeding vital war materials into Soviet Russia through the Arctic port of Murmansk.

This job of delivering the goods was described by Cmdr. Samuel Frankel, 37, of Stapleton, N.Y., United States assistant naval attaché stationed in Murmansk, but now visiting Moscow for conference.

United States merchantmen carrying supplies to Russia, he said, are bringing their cargoes successfully to port with relatively few casualties despite attacks of German dive bombers and torpedo planes. During the last four months he said, American casualties have been not more than 25 wounded and the same number missing and dead.

In the future, he said, losses should be even less, for the advent of the foggy season will give the convoys greater protection and the retreat of the Arctic icefield will permit them to make a great circle far north of the Norwegian coast.

Each crew member has been granted a Soviet post-bonus, an additional month's pay, Frankel disclosed.

The bonus, by dollar draft presented to the captain of each ship amounts to about $3,000 per vessel. This is in addition to other bonuses granted in United States.

CHEAP JEWELRY

Article Selling For Not More Than Fifty Cents Not Subject To Luxury Tax
Ottawa.—Jewelry selling at retail for not more than 50 cents is not subject to the new 25 per cent. luxury tax imposed on jewelry under Finance Minister Isley's 1942-43 budget.

An official summary of tax changes on budget night said the tax was not applicable to jewelry items "selling for less than 50 cents" whereas it should have read items "selling for 50 cents or less."

The tax applies to "articles, commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation, including diamonds and other precious or semi-precious stones for personal use or for adornment of the person, goldsmiths' and silversmiths' products including all gold, silver, chromium or other plated war and pewter ware."

REPORT HOSTAGES

German Authorities Try To Stop Anti-Nazi Sabotage In France
Paris.—German authorities in occupied France ordered immediate deportation of 50 hostages following new anti-Nazi attacks and sabotage and threatened to send another 50 away if those responsible for a list of anti-Nazi activities were not caught.

German military authorities announced the arrest of three men, who, they alleged, bomber German headquarters at Tours last Jan. 12. The three also were suspected of responsibility for the attempt to assassinate Marcel Deat, collaborationist of the pro-Nazi National Popular party, with a small bomb.

BADLY DAMAGED

Gneisenau Will Likely Be Out Of Service For Duration
London.—Photographs made by reconnaissance planes showed the German battleship Gneisenau was so badly damaged that three main 11-inch gun turrets had to be dismantled and 30 feet of forecastle deck removed, leading British authorities to the belief that she "may be out for the duration."

The 26,000-ton Gneisenau has been removed from Kiel to Gdynia, former Polish port, where the air ministry said it would be impossible to make large-scale repairs required to put her back into service.

LOOKS AT QUEBEC

The attitude of French-speaking Canadians to compulsory service overseas is discussed in a recent editorial in the Tucson, Arizona, Star. Here is an extract:

"The American people have no interest in this matter (compulsory overseas service in Canada), because Canada, America, and Britain are now partners in this great war. There are millions of American people who can not understand why they should be compelled to furnish their husbands and sons for overseas duty when their northern neighbor, Canada, does not. Ultimately, when the full truth of the disparity of Quebec's contribution becomes known, millions of American people are going to be rightfully incensed. The spectacle of America and Anglo-Saxon Canada doing most of the fighting while the French-Canada dictates her own contribution, and then expects her special minority rights protected, will not make sense to the American people. Only under the British Empire could such nonsense exist."

"It is time now for those who claim minority rights to realize that such rights imply duties. If Quebec expects to maintain the respect of the American people, she will have to do her equal part of the fighting, instead of offering shallow excuses and wailing like a spoiled child. If the Canadian government expects to enjoy the respect of the American people, it will have to impose conscription on a par with the United States. The Canadian government has a record of so scrupulously respecting minority rights, of coddling a pampered child so long that failure to impose equal conscription will appear more and more as an effort on its part to place its own personal political welfare ahead of that of victory and have American people assume burdens which it should assume without further fear."—Montreal Standard.

On the evening of June 26th a shower was held in the hall of Central United church in honor of Miss Marion, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Angus MacDonald. Community singing, led by Mrs. Roland Pinkney at the piano, followed by a guessing contest, in which Mrs. E. Scrimba and Mrs. I. Evans were winners, opened the programme. The highlight of the evening was a mock wedding presented to the amusement of the many friends present. In this, Mrs. Hobson, the groom of the evening, escorted Marion to the table, where beautiful gifts from her friends were presented by Mrs. Bannan. Marion, completely taken by surprise, thanked all present in a few well chosen words for their kindness, and invited them to call and see her in her new home in Manyberries at any time. Mrs. F. M. Pinkney then presented Mrs. MacDonald with a bouquet of beautiful carnations. Refreshments were then served.

SOME NOTABLE SPEECHES

In all the editorial comment on the retirement of Sir Edward Beatty as president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, none has been noticed wherein mention is made of the fact that Sir Edward is one of the finest of public speakers. Although the subject matter long since has been forgotten, an address delivered in Toronto along about 1927 still remains in the memory as an outstandingly delightful after-luncheon performance. On another occasion, much more recent, it was revealed in an address before a property-owners' association that the charm of the more youthful years had not been lost in the stress and strain of later years.

Perhaps the commentators, having so much else to say about him, refrained from remarking on his public speaking, because so many of his addresses in recent years were designed to arouse the nation to the need for dealing constructively with the railway problem and because these addresses did not accomplish their purpose. At least parliament was still reluctant to act up to the start of the war.

We have always felt that the failure of that one-man campaign was due in part to the belief held by so many in these times that zeal for the public well-being is monopolized by the poor and unsuccessful, and that no man who has achieved prominence in commerce and finance can make even a casual remark about the weather without harboring some motive of self-interest.

But that would account only partly for the unenthusiastic reception of Sir Edward's proposals. The main difficulty is, we believe, that Sir Edward Beatty is inclined to judge other men by his own standards. And those standards are very high indeed. Thus when he essayed to win public approval for a plan of railway reform—and none can deny that railway reform will remain a public need until it is accomplished—he spoke as a Canadian who merely happened to have special knowledge of the subject. Only a less public spirited man would fail to be surprised when selfish interests fostered, with success, the thought that of course the president of the C.P.R. was more concerned with the welfare of his company than the welfare of his country.

There are reasons for believing that the few men, great or small, have as strong a sense of public duty as has Sir Edward Beatty. He, of course, is too intelligent not to know better than anyone else that his company's progress is inextricably bound up with the progress of Canada and the peace of the world, but this is also true, and in the same relative degree, with respect to every other person in the nine provinces. Yet the obscure man, saint or politician, with none-can-say-what pure or selfish ambition, has a better opportunity of influencing public opinion than has the man who has attained prominence and success, no matter how modestly and deservedly.

Railway reform, if and when it comes, will be accomplished possibly by a statesman, a man in the political arena. But it is more likely to arrive if and when the average voter is convinced of the need for it by some means other than the appeal by men of prominence, however enlightened, sincere and disinterested.—The Print-Word.

YOUR SCRAP METAL URGENTLY NEEDED!

This New Method makes Scrap Metal Collection easy for you.

More scrap steel and iron is urgently needed for more ships, tanks, planes, guns and munitions. You are asked to do your part by turning in every available ounce of scrap metal from your farm.

In order to facilitate the systematic collection of scrap iron and steel in the three Prairie Provinces, the Wartime Salvage Limited, a Government Company, has completed arrangements with the following Western Canadian Elevators for collection and purchase of scrap iron and steel:

Alberta Wheat Pool.

Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd.

Saskatchewan Pool Elevators.

United Grain Growers Limited.

North-West Line Elevator Association.

These Companies handle and purchase this material on behalf of the Government without cost to the Government, and without profit to themselves. Any monies received over and above the actual cost of handling will be donated to War Charities.

An Agent of one of the above named Elevator Companies has been appointed in your district as an official buyer on behalf of the Wartime Salvage Limited. The price to be paid by these Agents has been fixed by the Department of Munitions & Supply at $7.00 per net ton at the elevator, for all forms of scrap iron and steel including: (a) Sheet tin of any kind; (b) Automobile bodies and fenders; (c) Stovepipes; and (d) Wooden attachments.

This price applies at any designated point in the Prairie Provinces.

Your contribution to the war effort and to war charities is simplified by this arrangement and it will be more effective inasmuch as you now can take your scrap metal to the Elevator designated in your district and obtain a receipt for it from the Agent.

Should you desire to donate your scrap to the war effort, then such receipt voucher can be endorsed by you, payable to the Voluntary Salvage Committee in your community. The Voluntary Salvage Committee will use such money for war charitable purposes.

Your contribution of scrap iron and steel is urgently needed NOW. Dig out every available ounce of scrap on your farm and take it to the Elevator Agent nearest you without delay. Canadian war industry needs it badly.

WHAT TO DO WITH HITLER

I am a full-fledged Yankee from away out in the west.

Where the rattlesnakes do rattle and the buzzards build their nests. Now I'm going to join the army and head straight for Japan—

We'll show those slant-eyed suckers what it is to be a man. Then we'll go right up to Germany and get old Hitler, too;

We'll make him pay allegiance to our old red, white and blue. We'll break into his cellar and drink up all his beer.

Then throw him in the gutter and spit right in his ear. We'll fill his mouth with muckilage, put molasses in his hair.

Then get some real flypaper to plaster o'er his hair.

We'll put snakes in his best parlor and cactus in his bed.

We'll take him back to Russia where it's forty-two below. With nothing but a straw hat on and chase him through the snow.

We'll fill his living quarters with chiggers, bugs and ants; Put centipedes in his best shoes and scorpions in his pants.

And just so he might mingle with an element just his level.

We'll put some skunks in his palace and invite his friend the devil.

But I don't think we'll find it in us to insult the lovely beast.

So we'll kill the little skunky and on it make him feast.

Talked With A Queen

Queen Wilhelmina Was Customer Of Druggist At Lee, Mass.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands walked into Frank Pease's drug store to make a few purchases at Lee, Mass.

Some persons might have been in a quandary wondering whether to address her as "Your Excellency" or "Your Highness," or whether to remain silent until spoken to.

But Pease said politely: "Good morning, Queen."

"Good morning," she replied. "Isn't it a lovely morning?"

The Queen is visiting her daughter, Princess Juliana and the latter's two little girls at Juliana's summer home.

Pease said he inquired for the health of the children. The Queen replied that they were fine, and on learning the druggist also had children, told him:

"Then I must bring the little girls down."

"I'll give them each an ice cream cone," said Pease.

"They'll love that," the Queen said.

Khaki Woollens

Special Process In Britain For Making Uniforms For Soldiers

Five bright hues of wool are now blended together to produce the earthy color of khaki, first widely used in South Africa for the uniforms of the British Army.

In peace time the process was a secret belonging to the West Riding of Yorkshire where the heavy woollen industry first discovered how to blend wool of six colors into khaki thread. But today the West Riding shares its secrets with all other wool spinning areas in the United Kingdom so that the whole industry can go ahead with the colossal job of putting the troops into uniform.

The blending is now standardized and the number of colors reduced by one. The correct proportions of blue, yellow, brown, red and mauve wools are torn up by huge combs which separate, mix and blend them. Gradually each color begins to lose its identity, just as the colors on a spinning top will merge into a misty grey. At first the mass of colored wool is patchy—bluish here, yellowish there—and then, as the machines complete the job, the colors become so well blended that khaki finally emerges from the rainbow.

This blending process gives an even and more lasting result than dyeing the cloth in the piece as was done in the early days. In the war of 1914-18 the difficulties of replacing dyes formerly imported from Germany produced colors which varied in different parts of the country from smoky grey-green to dark brown. Today charts and specifications result in every mill weaving exactly the same shade and each piece of khaki cloth is carefully inspected before being passed out—British Industries Bulletin.

Extermination Policy

Nazis Have Massacred A Million Jews In Europe

The Germans have massacred at least 1,000,000 Jews in Europe since the war began, a spokesman for the World Jewish Congress said in London.

The persecution has been particularly severe in the conquered countries of East Europe, the spokesman added. Poland, Latvia, Lithuania and Rumania have suffered greatly.

They said that probably 700,000 Jews had been killed in Lithuania, Poland, 125,000 in Rumania, 200,000 in Russia and 100,000 in the rest of Europe. These victims were selected from Europe's pre-war Jewish population of 6,000,000 to 7,000,000.

The slaughter is part of the Nazis' proclaimed policy that "physical extermination of the Jews must from now on be the aim of Germany and her allies," the spokesman said.

Poison Gas From 'Planes

Mussolini Was The First To Use This Method

Mussolini was the first to use gas from airplanes in war. With perforated air-borne cans full of liquid mustard gas, against the half-naked inhabitants of Abyssinia under what would probably be described in the trade as "favorable conditions," he sprayed the stuff from the air in a circle round little Ethiopian villages and then bombed them.

As the warlords and their women and children rushed out to seek shelter in woods, they found there waiting for them—the deadliest stench that ever came out of a tank tube—a rot which they could neither understand nor cure.

If ever gas is used in this war against ourselves or our Allies, we have the means to give it back from the air quicker than you'd ever believe and in greater volume and intensity than the enemy would ever like to believe—and without ever having to send out for refills—Capt. R. H. Helmore of the R.A.F.

ADAM AND EVE: TEMPTATION AND SIN

Golden text: The soul that sinneth, it shall die. Ezekiel 18:4.

Devotional reading: 1 John 1:15-2:2.

Explanations and Comments

The Garden of Eden, Genesis 2:8-16. Jehovah planted a garden eastward in Eden, we read. For Eden the Septuagint Version has the word "Paradise," whence comes our word "Paradise." There were trees in the garden, which provided food and among them were two mysterious trees, one of which bore fruit that had the power to give the eater knowledge of good and evil, and the fruit of the other gave immortality.

"The magical property, of these trees shows plainly enough that the story belongs to the realm of primitive religious fancy, but this must not blind us to the profound and powerful teaching of which it is the vehicle" (J. E. McFadyen). Into this garden Adam and Eve were placed to care for it. Of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil they were forbidden to eat; if they disobeyed, they would surely die.

Temptation, Genesis 3:1-6. Now the serpent was more subtle than any beast of the field which Jehovah God had made, we read. The serpent here is the power of evil personified. It is Milton, not Genesis, that terms the serpent Satan.

The serpent shows his subtlety in his first remark to the woman: "Yea (indeed), hath God said: Ye shall not eat of any tree in the garden?" "Ay, and so God has said, etc." is one translation. The interrogative sentence is exclamatory, and is designed to arouse the woman's distrust of God.

Eve's answer shows that she represents the serpent's subtle meaning; they could eat of the fruit of any tree in the garden save of that which is in its midst, that tree of the knowledge of good and evil. That tree they should neither eat nor touch, lest they die. That this was an apple tree is an idea said to have come from the Romans.

Disobedience, Genesis 3:6, 7. Eve looked longingly at the forbidden fruit, dalled with temptation. "To partake with temptation is to play with fire" (Bunyan). She saw that it was good for food, a delight to the eyes, and had the power to make one wise; there was an appeal to the appetite, to the sense of beauty, and to the intellect. The desire to become like God overcame the fear of his like God overcame the fear of his disson and partook of the fruit, and then gave the fruit to Adam and he ate also.

U.S. BLACKLIST The United States government had extended its economic blacklist to 86 firms and individuals in Iran and Iraq and in the tiny European states of Andorra, between Spain and France, and Liechtenstein, in the Swiss-German border. It also added 142 firms and individuals in Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Sweden and Turkey, and 308 more listings in 18 American republics, bringing to 8,000 the number of persons and corporations the United States government believes to be operating for the benefit of the enemy, and with which United States citizens are forbidden to trade.

Railway locomotives sometimes have a weight of more than 200 tons.

PROPER FOOD AND HEALTH

If everyone would pay attention to his diet—and that means good, solid food and not pills—it would lead to a healthy nation. And the health of the nation may be the deciding factor in the war, so Dr. P. P. Tisdale of the Hospital for Sick Children, told the Board of Trade Club of Toronto recently.

"Canadians with the richest of food supplies do not eat the right foods and the result is that about one-third of the population is under-nourished," he declared. A Toronto survey among families in the $1,500 - $2,400-a-year class showed marked deficiency of vitamins B1 and C in the general diet.

"There are 34 food substances needed for a good diet," Dr. Tisdale declared. "If any of these are lacking, resistance to disease is not what it should be."

Here's a normal diet that contains nearly all you'll want. A pint of milk, an egg or two, meat, vegetables, raw fruits and whole grain cereals. In the winter concentrated vitamin D should be added. "Lots of food can go down the kitchen sink," Dr. Tisdale observed. He said spinach water contains the greatest amount of the valuable elements of spinach. Potatoes should be boiled no longer than 14 minutes. The deadline for cauliflower is 12 minutes. "Cooked longer or left in water, these vegetables lose most of their value."

"We must think of vitamins in terms of food, not in terms of drug-stores," he asserted.

Shortage Of Ships

Reason: Some Foodstuffs And Gasoline Are Rationed In Canada

Only a few years ago Brazil had such a great surplus of coffee that it dumped tons of it into the sea. Today coffee is being rationed in Canada and other countries. It is not because the supply of coffee has run out; it is due to the inability to ship coffee to the places where it is wanted. It's the war that's to blame.

Submarines destroy ships and consequently foodstuffs. If moved at all, are moved at great risk. Since early in the year over two hundred ships engaged in traffic along the eastern coasts of the Americas have been torpedoed. There lies the explanation for gasoline rationing, coffee rationing, tea rationing, sugar rationing.

There is an abundance of these commodities in the lands where they are produced but there are few ships to move them.—Brandon Sun.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Tamar was allowed to go outside the cabin for a brief taste of fresh air. She caught a glimpse of the plane sheltered by an over-hanging copse of woods low on the slope of the first foothill. They were in a valley, and she knew that Louise must be an expert pilot to have landed as easily. It took precision to drop down in a place like this. The broad strip of withered grass she knew was used for a runway.

Here they were in another world. What more perfect place for a hide-out than this? Louise tied her in a chair and said, "Louise will get here long before noon. She'll take care of you until I get back."

He placed her near the radio and turned it in and said: "Too bad that you can't change your station but this Theresa gets here. I won't risk your smoking—smart girl like you might try to turn the blinding from your hands. If you get hungry, just ring the bell." He grinned maliciously.

Tamar heard the plane start and take off and settled down to a morning of monotony, which even fear and dread could not dispel. The radio helped a little, yet the programs seemed usually dull, excepting for the recorded musical numbers.

The room grew cool finally after the legs burned low and there was no way for her to replenish it. Once she thought that something might happen to Louise and she was not found for days occurred to her, and she thought that, even this experience with Louise was better than being left here to starve slowly.

Shadwell, her father, Ranny and the Cricket Hill seemed far away. She would not allow herself to remember Christopher. That hurt too much.

Out of the distance came the soft purring of a motorcar. She could see the long low coupe as it swung around the corner of the cabin window. A feminine figure sat at the wheel.

A minute later the cabin door opened and in came Louise's Theresa. Tamar sat at her.

"Lo, darling," Louise told me all about you. I don't think you're just a kid, though. A gamine malle in her features, and Tamar almost smiled back.

Theresa was small and well rounded and, of course, a blonde. Her curls were glossy and well brushed, following the line of her small head. Her nose was imperceptibly turned up and her brown eyes wide spaced and clear. She didn't look like any conception of a gangster's moll.

"I've read all about you," Theresa went on.

Tamar studied her. The green suede set-in belt of the coat hugged her small waist and looped rakishly at the side. Theresa untied it and slipped her hat off in the same moment.

"I promise. There's no way of getting out of here, and I don't know a thing about guns," Tamar smiled wanly.

"I do. I've killed one man, and although it hurt my conscience a bit at first, not any more. He was trying to do in Louise," she excused the crime with a shrug. "I don't know what that big boss's got that keeps me that way. But I do love the egg, like nobody's business, and I'll look after him."

Theresa untied Tamar's hands, but did not touch the cord around her feet. "Louise and I were married three years ago. He's gone a lot, and I don't appreciate his doing this job. But we'll get by—by—We always have."

She built another fire and set about getting lunch ready. This meal consisted of sandwiches and hot coffee and fruit. Afterward the girls sat and smoked. Tamar was amazed at Theresa's philosophy. Where in the world had she soaked all of it up, she wondered.

"Tell me about Shadwell. I loved every word that I read about him. I've always wanted to see some place like that. Must be something like the plantations in 'Gone With the Wind'."

There was a book. Rhett Butler. I call Louise that once in a while. And as long as he hasn't read it, I can get by. Do all Southern girls have big blue eyes and coal-black hair?"

"Why, no. Of course not. My best friend is as blond as you."

Theresa's voice had the same quickness and accent of the Easterners she had known and Tamar wished that she might ask her something about herself.

After lunch Theresa did a thorough job of going over the cabin. She brought in clean linens from the trunk of her hand and swept and dusted with vigor. The house fairly shone from her efforts. After she was through, she settled down to some handwork and tossed conversational sallies to Tamar. In the late afternoon she replenished the basket of wood from the pile near the cabin.

"It's getting lots colder. I hope that we don't have bad weather right now. We can usually count on several nice weeks here in this little valley."

Theresa made no preparations for a man's meal, and Tamar surmised that she was not expecting Louise back tonight. Once she even went so far as to try to figure out some scheme of getting loose from the bonds about her feet and trying to escape during the time when Theresa might sleep. But she knew that was hopeless. Her hands would be bound again.

Tamar realized that her note would be used by Louise to identify her to her father so he could collect the ransom. As her thoughts returned to Shadwell once more, she remembered unwillingly how she had longed only yesterday for Christopher Sande. What would he be doing? Was there any effort that he could make in trying to find her?

Rannone Todd was impulsive and hard-hitting. He would perhaps have by this time confronted Major Towne with the accusation of her kidnapping, when he had not had anything to do with it.

How much of the affair did Christopher Sande know previously.

Hot tears started to her eyes, and she made a determined effort to not let Theresa know that she wanted to cry. What good would it do? Instead she answered Theresa's questions agreeably and at length.

At dusk Theresa put away her handwork, drew the blinds and lit the lamps. The long room became livable and cozy again.

"I'll get a bite to eat. You ought to have some vegetables." She went into the kitchen and looked through the shelves. She wistfully as she worked and Tamar realized that the part she was taking in this crime had very little weight upon her conscience.

While they were eating Tamar had a wild desire to laugh. This simply wasn't according to Hoyle. It was perfectly weird, and no one would believe her. "Why, Theresa, your eyes would grow big and Dick would shut his slowest and say: 'Bye that you weren't dreaming?' Witnesses are so undependable. You didn't see any pink elephants running around in green-and-white checkered suits?"

Ranny would seek out this cabin in the valley and annihilate it—but he wouldn't believe that this sort of thing could take place. It might be an afternoon less. And Theresa was almost as personable as some of the girls in Tamar's bridge club, and twice as pretty as most of them.

Once the radio made a reference to Tamar's kidnapping and Theresa edged closer. Static broke into the announcer's words and they could hear only a confused mumbling. Tamar noticed the clock on the mantel, but it must have been only a news cast, she decided. She thought that Theresa seemed nervous after that, though, and tried to get other news broadcasts.

Theresa bound her hands after she was in bed. Tamar tried to go to sleep but tossed and turned as best she could with her hands bound. She realized that it was very late when she did drop off, and knew nothing more until the sun flooded the room.

Theresa did not look as though she had slept well, and there was a pile of cigarette stubs in the large tray on the smoker. This morning she was more nervous than last night, and did not make much effort to talk. Her lips had lost their pleasant curve and Tamar realized that she was frightened. When Louise returned, her bravado would come back, but now, she was only a woman with something to worry about.

The morning was unbearably long. Several times Tamar knew that Theresa was listening intently and thought that her head was lifted toward the sky. Evidently she was expecting Louise to come back in the plane.

About noon Theresa heated the oven in the wood range in the kitchen and prepared to broil a cooked ham. She worked at it expertly, peeling off the outer skin, rubbing it with brown sugar and spices and pouring pineapple juice about it. She washed potatoes and put them in the oven to bake. Tamar asked her once if she would like some help, but Theresa merely shook her head.

Theresa set the table and made the last of the dinner preparations. She smoked incessantly, and kept going to the windows and looking out. After 1 o'clock they heard the motor of the plane. Theresa ran out of the door, and Tamar could see her waving her arm. She trembled. "What would Louise do next? Would he be ready to return to me?"

Wooden Ships

Points Out The Necessity Of Steel Scarcity Of Steel

R. W. Mayhew, faithful representative of Victoria in Parliament, and an able industrialist, says the need for merchant shipping will force Canada to build wooden ships on this coast. There is, he says, not enough steel to build all the ships needed to the only answer is to use wood.

For months Mr. Mayhew has urged this policy upon Mr. Howe, but it has always been rejected on the ground that a steel ship is far better than a wooden ship.

"This, no doubt, is true. Wooden ships are slow in voyage. They sometimes leak and spoil cargoes. Unless Diesel engines can be built for them they require so much space for steam engines that they are uneconomical. But against all these theoretical objections are two grim facts—the Germans are sinking more steel ships than the Allies are building, and the building of steel ships is limited by the output of steel, which is not increasing.—Vancouver Sun.

PINS MAKE GUNS

For steel and brass savings, Britain used 1,500,000,000 fewer pins last year than in 1940. In an order restricting the amount of steel to be used in battle pins and bobby pins, the United States it is expected to effect a saving of 16,000,000 pounds of steel. This is equivalent to 160,000 50 calibre machine guns.

Is your fortune-seeker born on August 15? First she shuffles the deck, cuts it and removes her name card, a red Queen if she's blue-eyed. Then you lay aside the 8th card for the 8th month and, after she shuffles again, the 15th card.

The fateful surprise cards are next. The top three after another shuffle. The Five of Diamonds means big news, the Two of Hearts a proposal, the Four of Diamonds a raise.

Or in other cards in the "Birthday Fortune" you may find an Ace of Hearts, a new house; a Nine of Clubs, a pleasant trip. But may there be none of such and fellows as the Two of Clubs, a disappointment. Try the complete "Birthday Fortune" is explained in our 32-page booklet. Gives meaning of every card in the deck; also has a horoscope for each month and shows how to read exciting fortunes with tea-leaves, dominoes, dice, the "crystal."

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Fun With Fortune Telling," to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

A NATURAL CHANNEL

Beagle Channel is one of the wonders of the world. It stretches south of Tierra del Fuego—near the southern tip of South America—from east to west for a distance of 140 miles and is so straight one might think it was the work of man. In but very few places is it more than three miles broad and all along its length the beautiful mountains fall sheer into the water without any forebore, which makes them appear twice their 3,250 feet in height.

SMILE AWHILE

Drill Sergeant to married recruit—Butt on your chest!

Recruit (abashed)—Yes, dear.

Dad—Well you certainly look very clean, my boy.

Sonny—Sure. Ma just gave me a personally conducted bath.

"I wrote to the paper to find out how long cows should be milked."

"And they said?"

"Just like short cows."

"Dave, Dave, baby's swallowed a nickel!"

"Oh, well, it'll be his birthday next week."

Bachelor—What's the difference, Mary, between a hat and a creation?

Husband (interrupting)—About $15.

Antiquarian—This vase is 2,000 years old. Be very careful in carrying it.

Moving Man—You can depend on me, professor. I'll be as careful of it as if it were new!

Mistress (engaging new maid)—And what is your religion?

Maid—Well, mother goes to church, and father goes to chapel. But me I'm wireless.

Said the vicar's wife: "I hear that you won a vacuum cleaner in the raffle, Mrs. Potts."

"Yes, ma'am," replied Mrs. Potts, "but it's of no use to me. I ain't got a vacuum."

"Jack, dear," said the bride, "let us try to make the other people think we've been married a long time."

"All right, honey," came the reply, "but do you think you can carry both suitcases?"

Mr. Brown looked at the letter on his desk.

"We are very surprised," it read, "that the money we have demanded so often has not yet arrived."

Turning to his secretary, he dictated his reply:

"Dear Sirs—You do not need to be surprised. I have not sent you the money."

At The Close Of A Busy Day On The Farm

The above cartoon, drawn by an art student at the University of Oklahoma, is here reproduced for the first time in Canada through the courtesy of Prof. John H. "Water Cane" Casey of the Oklahoma school of Journalism. Professor Casey has written an appropriate text for the drawing and dedication to the Missouri Press Association which celebrated its 75th anniversary last week at the annual Journalism week at the University of Missouri of which he is an alumnus. His article follows:

THE FARM FAMILY 'GOES TO TOWN' EVERY SATURDAY

Any Thursday or Friday evening, you'll find a scene like this in the Jones Family farm home. When the eggs have been counted, packed and set aside in a cool place, ready for market, each adult and adolescent member of the household "goes for" the STORE NEWS in the local newspaper in a big way.

Junior, age 16, wants the latest price and specifications on a new streamlined "bike." Sue's interest is a new "chapeau." . . . and she knows how to pronounce it the French way. Dad looks for the hardware listings and he's been talkin' of a new tractor some of late . . . while Mom goes for the drug store prices, women's wear and grocery items. Not a single advertised value escapes her thrifty, eagle eye.

Then, there's Grandpa, who needs some "tobacco" and maybe a new pair of overhauls. Bill, the hired hand, figures as how he'll be lookin' for a used car bargain. Josephine, age nine, and Archie, age seven, need some new toggery and some school supplies . . . but, Mom's looking after that while they scan the "funnies" together bellybust on the living room floor.

Just a typical farm family on any Thursday or Friday evening after the local newspaper has arrived . . . in studied preparation for the family's weekly shopping excursion to town Saturday.

That's what Professor Casey wrote, and it is just as true in Canada, with the present day exception on "rationed" articles.

Without the Home Town weekly, with its intimate news, it would be hard to know what is going on in the neighborhood—particularly now with all the rationing of tires, gas, etc., etc.

We thank Professor Casey for allowing us to publish this cartoon and the accompanying text.

Skiing Club

Formed By Members Of R.A.F. In Iceland

Members of the R.A.F. serving in Iceland have jumped at the opportunity of improving their skiing, or of learning the art from the beginning. Among the officers there are some expert skiers, and they have undertaken to act as instructors to others who wish to learn.

A ski club has been formed and several of the members are reported to show marked promise. Twice a week parties are formed for an excursion in the mountains. There is ample snow in the neighborhood.

FEW DARK NIGHTS

Completely dark nights in the polar regions are an exception. The Aurora Borealis in the Arctic, and the Aurora Australis in the Antarctic, constantly add their brilliant displays to the darkened sky, and the horizon usually is lighted by the hidden sun.

The Copernican theory was the conception that the sun, and not the earth, is the centre of our planetary system.
